New from RIMS: Board Risk Reporting – How to Deliver Insights that Matter

Effective board risk reporting is about more than presenting data, it is about delivering meaningful insights that enable informed decision-making.

RIMS' latest white paper, Board Risk Reporting: How to Deliver Insights that Matter, explores how risk practitioners can strengthen the way they support board oversight in an increasingly complex and dynamic business environment. As organisations navigate evolving risks, shifting stakeholder expectations and growing governance responsibilities, the ability to communicate risk clearly and strategically has never been more important.

The publication offers practical guidance for professionals responsible for reporting to boards of directors and governance committees, helping them move beyond simply presenting information to providing the insights boards need to understand emerging risks, evaluate strategic implications and make confident decisions.

Whether you are refining your board reporting framework or looking to enhance the impact of your risk communications, this white paper is a valuable resource for today's risk professionals.

Asia Pacific Captive Forum 2026 Debuts in Singapore

The inaugural Asia Pacific Captive Forum (APCF) 2026 brought together more than 130 captive owners, risk leaders, regulators and industry experts in Singapore to explore the growing role of captive insurance in strengthening organisational resilience, governance and strategic risk financing.

Organised by the Singapore Captive Insurance Association (SCIA), the forum marked the launch of a new regional platform dedicated to advancing captive insurance conversations across Asia Pacific. Throughout the event, delegates explored topics including the business case for captives, employee benefits, governance and compliance, capital management, reinsurance partnerships and the evolving role of captives in corporate strategy.

A key theme emerging from the discussions was that captives are no longer viewed solely as insurance vehicles, but as strategic business tools that support capital optimisation, strengthen governance and enable organisations to navigate an increasingly complex risk landscape with greater resilience.

RusRisk Forum 2026 Explores Business Resilience in an Era of Global Challenges

Results of the XXIII Professional Forum “RISK MANAGEMENT – NEW CHALLENGES”

The XXIII RusRisk Professional Forum, held in Kazan, Russia, brought together more than 120 risk professionals and attracted over 400 online participants to discuss the future of risk management under the theme, "Risk Management 2026: Transformation of Business Sustainability in the Era of Global Challenges."

Over two days, industry leaders, academics and experts explored topics including enterprise risk management, cyber and financial risk, insurance, digital transformation, artificial intelligence, governance, and organisational resilience. The programme also featured the presentation of new research on the maturity of risk management systems within Russian non-financial organisations and recognised excellence through the Best Risk Management in Russia – 2026 awards.

A highlight of the forum was a keynote presentation by Yvonne Mothibi, Executive Director of IRMSA and Secretary General of IFRIMA, who shared global perspectives on international collaboration and the future of risk management, including opportunities across the African continent.
